

Local Businessman Elected to National Trade Association Board

ANN ARBOR, MI, June 17, 2016 -- Ben Kaplan, President of Rightaway Delivery in Ann Arbor, has been elected to the board of directors of the Customized Logistics and Delivery Association (CLDA). He will serve a three-year term advising this national trade association.

Kaplan founded Rightaway Delivery 17 years ago, growing it from a local courier company to a full service transportation provider. Rightaway supports businesses, universities and hospitals with Scheduled and time sensitive courier and trucking services. Additionally, Rightaway solves nationwide logistical challenges for numerous fortune 500 companies.

Rightaway has been an involved contributor to the local community since it was founded in 1999. Most recently, it gained notoriety by volunteering its trucks and drivers to deliver water to homes in Flint on Sundays. The UAW recently honored them for their efforts.

Kaplan has been an active member of the CLDA since 2005.

He is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University. He and his wife, Jake have three grown children. They live in Saline.

About the Customized Logistics and Delivery Association

The Customized Logistics and Delivery Association is an advocate for the profitability and professionalism of companies that keep the global supply chain running. The association opens the doors to business success for delivery companies, logistics providers, LTL carriers and the shippers who rely upon them. Members handle the expedited shipping needs of large and small shippers across North America. They deliver the final mile to the supply chain. CLDA has been providing business opportunities, professional development, trend spotting and advocacy for all of those involved with time-critical and last-mile deliveries since 1987.
